

NIH Commons Registration How to Register and Receive a Password

The eRA Commons is an online interface where signing officials, principal investigators, trainees and post-docs at institutions/organizations can access and share administrative information relating to research grants.

Please provide OSP with the following:

You can select any user name you would like as long as it is at least six characters and no more than 20 characters in length. It can be a combination of letters and numbers. Each user name must be unique within the eRA Commons community. Special characters, including spaces, may not be used.

Note that your Commons ID will stay with you for life, so choose a user name wisely.

Last Name

E-mail

When the account is created, you will receive two emails. One email confirms the account has been created and User ID. The second email provides a temporary password log in to eRA Commons.
